

In my experience, we have found that Indiana's telephone privacy law has geiven us back our household's phone lines. Telemarketing calls had become so frequent in my house that I almsot hated to answer the telephone; it was not uncommon for me to be interrupted three times in an evening with these unwanted calls.

I was grateful to be able to get my name on this list and stop the incessant interruption of my privacy that these calls had represented. I hope that any federal legislation will do nothing to weaken the impact that the Indian law has had here.